The Delmar Divide*, on residential segregation

Delmar Boulevard in St. Louis, which spans the city from east to west, features million-dollar mansions directly to the south, and poverty-stricken areas to its north. What separates rich and poor is sometimes just one street block. The BBC's Franz Strasser talked to residents, business owners and pastors on both sides of the street about why things are the way they are.

The Talk*, on something African-American kids must learn

This is a documentary about the increasingly necessary conversation taking place in homes and communities across the country between parents of color and their children, especially sons, about how to behave if they are ever stopped by the police.

A thoughtful discussion will be facilitated by Ben Rumbaugh and Lauren Enty Rumbaugh

Ben Rumbaugh is in the joint Master of Divinity and Master of Public Policy program at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and CMU. Lauren Enty Rumbaugh is a social worker at Three Rivers Youth. They were trained through Pittsburgh Interfaith Impact Network in a program developed in St. Louis after the 2014 death of Michael Brown in Ferguson, MO.
